THE PROFESSIONAL STANDARD

FPI Code of Ethics and Practice Standards
Incorporating
The FPI Rules of Professional Conduct

Preamble to the code

PHILOSOPHY OF THE CODE

Professions play an important role in ensuring an ordered society. As such, a profession will publish a code of ethics to protect its clients and society at large by guiding their members to conduct themselves ethically. This contributes to the reputation and credibility of the profession and its members. It also guarantees sustainable development of the profession.

THE PURPOSE OF THE CODE

The FPI Code of Ethics is intended to promote ethical behaviour and to prevent unethical behaviour by its members. The guidelines provided in the code instils confidence in the members in that it gives them clear conduct boundaries. It also stimulates ethical awareness and decision-making.

THE FORMAT OF THE CODE

The FPI Code of Ethics is directional in nature. It is thus rules-based. These rules however, rests on a foundation of ethical aspirations such as integrity and fairness. A list of ethical rules can never be exhaustive though and members therefore have an obligation to use their ethical discretion when confronted with ethical challenges that the rules may not provide for.

CODE VIOLATION

FPI professional members will subject themselves to disciplinary action should they violate the rules contained in the code. Members are also ethically obliged to report unethical behaviour by fellow professionals should they become cognisant of such conduct.

PART 2: CODE OF ETHICS

(WITH GUIDANCE NOTES)

PRINCIPLE 1 - CLIENT FIRST (PLACE THE CLIENT'S INTERESTS FIRST)

Placing the client's interests first is a hallmark of professionalism and is a core value of any profession. It requires the FPI members to act honestly at all times and not place personal interest or advantage, in any form, before their clients' interests.

GUIDANCE NOTE:

FPI members are faced with many pressures: their client's needs; employers' expectations; the expectations of principals or franchisors and the like; and their own need to grow and maintain a successful and sustainable business. The client's interests must, however, be served above all these competing demands.

FPI members has an obligation to maintain an ethical practice, regardless of their manner of compensation and as such advise their clients based on what is in their best interest over and above of what is in the interest of the FPI member and/or another party.

PRINCIPLE 2 - INTEGRITY (PROVIDE PROFESSIONAL SERVICES WITH INTEGRITY)

Integrity requires adherence to practices of honesty, fairness, consistency and candour in all professional matters. FPI members are placed in a position of trust by a client and the ultimate source of that trust is the member's personal integrity. Allowances can be made for legitimate differences of opinion, but integrity cannot co-exist with deceit or subordination of one's principles. Integrity requires the member to observe both the letter and the spirit of the Principles of Conduct, the Professional Conduct Rules and the Practice Standards.

GUIDANCE NOTE:

Adherence to the Principle of Integrity requires the FPI member to fairly and consistently do the right thing in the best interest of their clients even when no one is watching or will find out. Further examples of integrity are: keeping to one's promises, standing up for what is ethically acceptable even when it is not self-serving to do so, acting on principles that go beyond mere legal compliance, making recommendations as if every decision and action would be open to public scrutiny, and continuously enhancing the credibility of and trust in the profession. The FPI member delivers on the service promise made to the client and every client should get the best efforts of the member, within the limits of their engagement.

To test their integrity, FPI members ask themselves:
Am I prepared to read about my actions and decisions in a newspaper?

PRINCIPLE 3 - OBJECTIVITY (PROVIDE PROFESSIONAL SERVICES OBJECTIVELY)

Objectivity requires intellectual honesty and impartiality. Regardless of the services delivered or the capacity in which a FPI member functions, objectivity requires members to identify and manage conflicts of interest and exercise sound professional judgment.

GUIDANCE NOTE:

Being objective means demonstrating the ability to evaluate information and circumstances without letting one's own emotions or competing priorities (such as compensation) cloud judgment. Objectivity also encompasses rendering advice or making recommendations based on thorough research and subsequent knowledge and understanding of the client's needs, sound analysis of products and optimally matching clients' needs with the products best suited to them.

Regardless of the service rendered or the capacity in which members function, personal bias, undue influence and personal interest never play a role in the way members render their professional services.

PRINCIPLE 4 - FAIRNESS (BE FAIR AND REASONABLE IN ALL PROFESSIONAL RELATIONSHIPS. DISCLOSE AND MANAGE CONFLICTS OF INTEREST)

Fairness requires providing clients with what they are due, owed, or could legitimately expect from a professional relationship. FPI members are fair and consider the needs and expectations of all stakeholders to their transactions in a balanced and unbiased manner. Information required by clients is provided in an unbiased and way and in an easy to understand format. Members identify and disclose real and potential material conflicts of interest in a timely manner. Fairness implies treating others in the same manner that you would want to be treated.

GUIDANCE NOTE:

Fairness requires an application of the 'reasonable man'-test. As such, fairness does not necessarily mean that everyone receives the same treatment, but rather that clients consistently receive at least what FPI members, acting reasonably and responsibly, would determine that the clients need and what the members have committed to provide. There may be situations where it is necessary for FPI members to withdraw their services and refer the client elsewhere as a result of a conflict of interest.

Fairness requires impartiality and the disclosure of all facts by FPI members that are relevant to their clients' situation. FPI members suppress their personal feelings, prejudices and needs in all professional dealings.

FPI members communicate at a level that is understandable to each of their clients. This applies to all communications (verbal or written). Fairness implies that FPI members are able to consistently justify their decisions. Even in hindsight they should be able to declare that they would have provided the same advice at the time if they had the opportunity to again consider those decisions and advice. In this way fairness is linked to reliability.

PRINCIPLE 5 - COMPETENCE

(MAINTAIN THE ABILITIES, SKILLS AND KNOWLEDGE NECESSARY TO PROVIDE PROFESSIONAL SERVICES COMPETENTLY)

Competence requires attaining and maintaining a high level of knowledge, skills and abilities in the provision of professional services. Competence also includes the wisdom to recognise one's own limitations, consulting with other professionals when in doubt and referring clients to other professionals should one not have the time, ability or inclination to optimally respond to a client's needs. Competence requires the FPI member to make a commitment to continued learning and professional development.

GUIDANCE NOTE:

At a minimum, the FPI member meets certification requirements. Members maintain their knowledge and skill by keeping up with changes in economic and regulatory environments and any changes in the financial services industry and areas of specific technical knowledge.

Through their registration with the FPI members make a commitment to Continuing Professional Development (CPD). FPI members regularly consult the FPI CPD Policy and events calendar to maintain an awareness of the methods available to members to maintain and build the competence they require to effectively serve their clients. CPD takes the form of relevant industry conferences, seminars, courses, research, writing, reading, teaching/presentation, pro bono work or mentoring others. FPI members communicate their competence and limits to their competence when initially engaging with clients. Thereafter competence is demonstrated in every client interaction. If, at any time, FPI members doubt their ability to adequately fulfil their obligations to a client, they need to withdraw from that engagement either temporarily or permanently.

Members execute proper due diligence enquiries and fully consider available information when providing recommendations. Should the situation merit an alternative approach, members need to fully rationalise and substantiate their advice in defying prevailing norms.

FPI members are not expected to be experts in all fields that may affect a client's financial portfolio, and should therefore not represent themselves in this way. In guiding the client to solutions that meet the client's objectives, members are expected to apply evidence-based knowledge obtained through proper analysis or consulting with other experts.

PRINCIPLE 6 - CONFIDENTIALITY

(PROTECT THE CONFIDENTIALITY OF ALL CLIENT INFORMATION)

Confidentiality requires client information to be protected and maintained in such a manner that allows access only to those who are authorised. A relationship of trust and confidence with the client can only be built on the understanding that the client's information will not be disclosed inappropriately.

GUIDANCE NOTE:

It is the FPI member's duty to ensure the confidentiality of all client information. A member does not divulge or share any details about a client to any person in any setting without the client's consent. This includes, but is not limited to, the client's name or identity, any information about a client's financial or personal affairs, or to even mention a specific client by name to a third party without the client's consent. The confidentiality obligation can only be nullified by a court order or legislation.

The FPI member takes all reasonable steps to protect and securely store all client documents and communications, in whatever form they may exist, from unauthorised access. This includes maintaining privacy and confidentiality during the destruction or return of all records when these are no longer needed. Furthermore, FPI members heed recently introduced legislative provisions regarding the protection of personal information.

PRINCIPLE 7 - DILIGENCE (PROVIDE PROFESSIONAL SERVICES DILIGENTLY)

Diligence requires fulfilling agreed upon professional commitments in a timely and thorough manner, and taking due care in planning, supervising and delivering professional services.

GUIDANCE NOTE:

Diligence is the degree of attentiveness, care and skill expected from FPI members in their professional service rendering. Diligence ensures the delivery of optimal value for the client.

It requires a high degree of care and attention to detail in all client dealings. A member's responsibility to be diligent applies to the entire process of engagement with the client and includes, but is not limited to, thorough collection and analysis of client information, prudent evaluation of options; and meaningful and clear presentation of recommendations.

Work that is done carelessly, or delegated to a subordinate who does not have adequate qualifications or expertise, may lead to inaccurate analyses or compromised advice that may not be in the client's best interest. Preservation of the member and the financial planning profession's reputation is paramount. Applying diligence also protects FPI members from civil claims, regulatory action or disciplinary action in the event where a client suffered damage as a result of the member's negligence.

The FPI member is reliable and responsive to the client's needs. Given that financial markets and the client's personal situation may change at short notice, it is important that analyses be completed and recommendations implemented in a timely manner.

When FPI members have an on-going mandate, they proactively, and at least annually, address the changing needs of all their clients within the context of the changing external context.

Diligence also refers to the opportunity for members to educate clients about the value of financial planning and the importance of engaging in sound financial practices and behaviours to meet their unique financial goals. Although it is ultimately the client's decision to follow the advice offered, the FPI member endeavours to motivate their clients to take actions that will ultimately benefit them.

PRINCIPLE 8 - PROFESSIONALISM (ACT IN A MANNER THAT DEMONSTRATES EXEMPLARY PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT)

Professionalism requires behaving with dignity and showing respect and courtesy to clients, fellow professionals, and others in business-related activities, and complying with appropriate legislation, regulations, rules and professional requirements. Professionalism requires the FPI member, individually and in co-operation with peers, to enhance and maintain the profession's reputation and public image and its ability to serve the public interest.

GUIDANCE NOTE:

Professionalism refers to conduct that inspires confidence, trust and respect from clients and the broader community, and embodies all of the other Principles of Conduct. Professionalism is an outcome of following the other seven Principles of Conduct.

Beyond the expertise required to practice in a particular field, professionalism is marked by high standards of ethics, behaviour and service, and the manner in which services are delivered, that set an individual apart as an FPI professional member.

FPI members take pride in their work and strive to always do the right thing, regardless of the type of business or services, their particular job function or level, their corporate title or designation, or their mode of compensation.

Inherent to professionalism is a sincere desire to assist clients to achieve their goals and to focus on "the greater good". True professionals continually focus on providing high quality advice and service.

FPI members are always committed to act in the interests of others and are unselfish in their motives. They inform clients tactfully on what they need to hear. Members use their professional acumen to develop ideas and to present these in a clear and succinct way to the client.

FPI members represent their employers, businesses, colleagues, the FPI and the profession with the utmost dignity and respect, thereby promoting their field in the eyes of the public, regulators and the relevant authorities.

FPI certification represents an individual's commitment to maintain the characteristics of professionalism and a commitment to represent financial planning as a recognised and respected profession.

A FPI professional member's guide to displaying professional ethics

To assess whether one's analyses, decisions and actions are ethically sound, FPI members ask themselves the following eight questions as related to the principles underlying the Code of Ethics:

1. Clients first: Did I act in the best interest of the client?
2. Integrity: Am I prepared to read about my actions in tomorrow's newspaper?
3. Objectivity: Am I convinced that I did not allow any emotions to cloud my judgement?
4. Fairness: Have I done what any reasonable person would have done under the same circumstances, or if had the power of hindsight at some point in the future, would I have given the same advice?
5. Competence: Do I have the collective and sufficiently updated knowledge and skills to render the best advice and service?
6. Confidentiality: Am I sure that I have made all efforts to protect confidential information?
7. Diligence: Have I applied all my skill and motivation to act in the best interest of the client in a timely manner?
8. Professionalism: Have I inspired trust in myself as a professional and in the profession as a whole through dignity and respect in all my actions?

PART 3: PRACTICE STANDARDS

(INCL. NOTES AND RULES OF CONDUCT)

PRACTICE STANDARD 1 (STEP 1)

CLIENT ENGAGEMENT

1.1 Introduction to the client

EXPLANATORY NOTE:

As a first step to engaging with a client FPI members introduce themselves to the client and explain who they are and what they do. The member provides the client with any necessary written confirmation such as a Letter of Introduction/ Disclosure Letter.

1.2 Inform the client about the purpose and value of financial planning as well as FPI professional member's competencies;

EXPLANATORY NOTE:

The FPI member informs the client about the financial planning process, the member's role, the services the member offers, and the member's competencies and experience. The member informs the client about the nature of the member's role and the duties that follow and provides the client, as required, with information about the services the member provides and how these services will be charged.

1.3 Conduct a high-level discussion to determine the client's needs.

EXPLANATORY NOTE:

FPI members and their clients determine whether the services offered by the members and their competencies could meet the client's needs. The capacity in which the client will require professional services from the member is also determined. Members evaluate their skills, knowledge and experience in being able to provide the services requested or likely to be required by the client. Prior to entering into a relationship with the client, the member determines whether any conflicting duty or interest, or any threat to compliance with professional requirements, would be created by the engagement with the client. Members always decline potentially unethical engagements.

1.4 Define scope of engagement between the FPI professional member and the client.

EXPLANATORY NOTE:

The member and the client agree, in writing, on the services to be provided. At the client's request or instruction, the member may limit the services to be provided in a manner consistent with the client's circumstances and expectations in seeking professional services. The member describes, in writing, the scope of the engagement before any financial planning is provided. The member includes the following details: the responsibilities of each party (including third parties), the terms of the engagement, remuneration, and actual or potential conflict(s) of interest of the FPI member. The scope of the engagement that includes a process for terminating the engagement, is set out in writing in a formal document signed by both the member and the client.

It should be noted that, if such a product or service is rendered/recommended, it will fall within the definition of "Service(s)/professional service(s)" referred to above.

PRACTICE STANDARD 2 (STEP 2)

COLLECTING THE CLIENT'S INFORMATION

- 2.1 Identify client's personal and financial, qualitative and quantitative needs, objectives, and priorities.

EXPLANATORY NOTE:

- 2.4 For the purposes of Rule 2.1, the FPI member exercises professional judgment and determines whether the information gathered as to the client's relevant personal circumstances, needs, objectives, and priorities, enables the client engagement to proceed as scoped. Where the information is insufficient, or inconsistent with the engagement as scoped, the member either seeks the client's consent to vary the nature of the engagement, or discontinues the engagement.

RULES RELATING TO PRACTICE STANDARD 2 COLLECTING CLIENT'S INFORMATION

- 2.1 An FPI member gains sufficient understanding of the client's needs, objectives, and priorities, and relevant personal circumstances to establish and confirm with the client the scope of the financial planning engagement, which will form the basis for the development of any relevant recommendations.
- 2.2 For the purposes of Rule 2.1, a member takes reasonable steps and applies a legally defensible process to:
- (a) Gather and record the client's quantitative and qualitative information;

4.4 Agree with Client, in writing, on products and/or services to be implemented

EXPLANATORY NOTE:

Also if the client's current product(s) or service(s) cannot reasonably meet their (new) agreed financial planning strategy and only after having due regard for, and documenting any cost, benefit, risks or adverse consequence of:
